

This is easy!

CQ wrote to Vicki, "have you heard of a peccary? Sometimes people get pigs and peccaries mixed up because they look like each other. Collared peccaries live in the jungle here."

Collared peccaries are black/grey in colour with a dark stripe down their back and a whitish "collar" of fur around their necks that looks like a yoke.

Photo source: Manuel Mejia

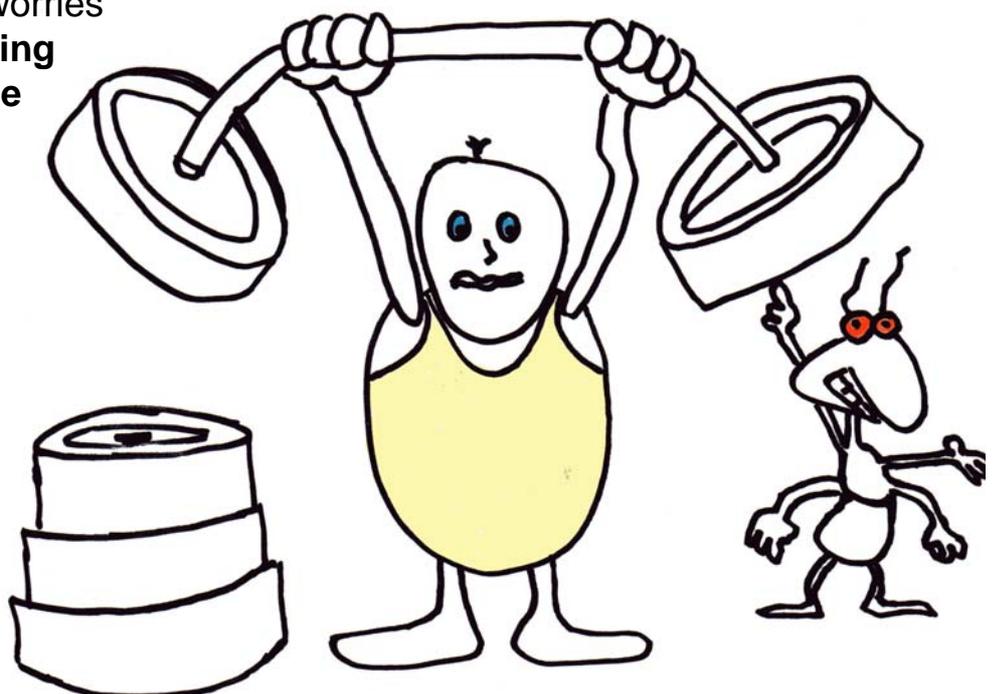

Listen to God!

Matthew 11:28-30

Traditional yokes are made of wood and join two animals together so they can pull a plough or a wagon. A young animal is yoked to an older one so it will do what the trained one does and learn what to do. If it fights against the yoke, it will feel pain, but if it co-operates, it will find the yoke easy to wear. When the two animals work together the job is easier to do too.

Do you ever have days when everything seems too hard? Taking on Jesus' yoke means allowing him to share our worries and burdens. Write anything that is worrying you in the stack of weights. Then tell Jesus about them and let him help you with them.

Talk to God!

Lord Jesus, sometimes life is hard. Thankyou that you are always there to help us.